

AIB signs lease on Central Park digital innovation centre of excellence

30th May 2017

AIB has signed a lease on a new office building located in Central Park Sandyford, where it plans to establish a centre of excellence in customer digital innovation. It will become AIB's permanent base for the teams that design, deliver and support digitally enabled customer products and services.

Robert Mulhall, Managing Director of Retail & Business Banking said "AIB has invested heavily in our digital capability and we currently lead the financial services digital market in this growing and important area. Today we are announcing the consolidation of digital customer and innovation activities into this new site in purpose built offices at Central Park in Sandyford. We believe this move will facilitate us in retaining and attracting the best people. When complete, this new campus will accommodate up to 1,500 people."

AIB chose Sandyford as it is already an established hub for complementary digital businesses. The fit-out process for the new building will take up to the end of 2017, and the building will house up to 1,500 people.
